The Executive shall indemnify the Company for direct losses finally determined to result from the Executive's fraud or willful misconduct, subject to applicable law.

10. DISPUTE RESOLUTION

SCHEDULE H — OPERATIONAL EXAMPLES AND INTERPRETIVE CONDITIONS

The following provisions are operative terms of this fictional test document and are intentionally detailed so that a document-analysis system can distinguish explicit facts from legal interpretation.

H.1. Deadline calculation

Where this Agreement states a number of calendar days, the count begins on the day after the triggering event unless applicable law requires another method. Where it states Business Days, weekends and applicable Bengaluru public holidays are excluded.

H.2. Notice interaction

A termination notice may be waived in whole or in part by the receiving party. A waiver of notice does not, by itself, waive accrued salary, approved reimbursable expenses, or other amounts already legally due.

H.3. Bonus versus retention award

The annual incentive described in Section 2.2 and the retention award described in Schedule F are separate programs. Eligibility for one does not create eligibility for the other.

H.4. Policy interaction

Company policies may provide operational detail but cannot, without a compliant written amendment, remove an express contractual right stated in this Agreement.

H.5. Applicable-law qualifier

Any provision containing an express “subject to applicable law” qualifier shall be interpreted with that qualifier. The existence of a contractual restriction does not by itself establish that the restriction is enforceable in every circumstance.

H.6. No implied facts

Nothing in this Agreement should be interpreted as establishing facts about actual market competitors, actual legal enforceability, tax outcomes, or statutory rights beyond the express fictional terms stated here.
